Lappset's Kingdom of Play

Inspiring every child to play

Theming intrigues the imagination and makes it easy to play together.

Themed playgrounds are a platform for children to create their own stories.

Castles are the perfect example of themed playgrounds which offer something for everyone!

The Story of Daffodil Castle

Once upon a time, in a kingdom not so far from here, there was a princess who loved nature. She loved flowers, butterflies and all the animals in the forest. She often used a flower wreath in her hair instead of her golden crown.

When the princess grew up, she built herself a castle and named it Daffodil castle, after her favourite flower.

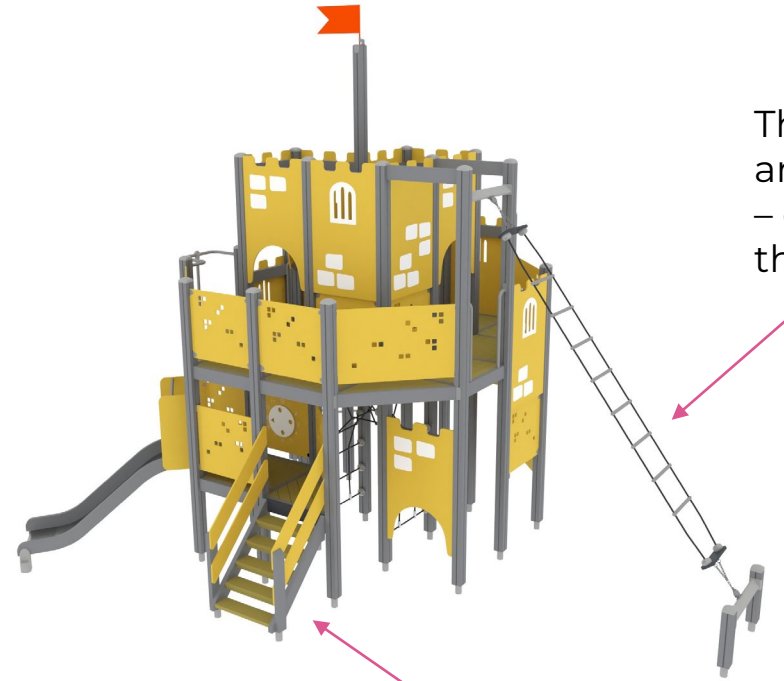

The castle was painted bright yellow like daffodils, a colour that represents happiness, optimism, and joy.

The Story of Winter Castle

Once upon on a time, a prince who loved winter, lived in a kingdom far far away.

He loved skiing, ice skating, making snow angels and building snow men. When summer arrived, the prince would be sad, until one year he decided to build a castle which reminded him of winter all year long.

The castle was decorated with snowflakes and inside the castle you could find the prince ice skating even during the summer heat.

He named it the Winter castle and lived there happily ever after.

The Story of the Three Knights

Once upon a time, in a kingdom full of things that would seem bizarre to us now, there were three knights who were each other's best friends.

One of the knights was incredibly wise. One of the knights was very brave. And one of the knights was particularly good with all kinds of animals and creatures.

Together they were able to defeat the dragon that threatened the town, and the King of the kingdom built a castle for the brave knights which that they stayed in whenever they were not out slaying dangerous dragons

The Story of Castle Maximus

Once upon a time, in a country on the other side of the world, there was a king called Maximus.

King Maximus was a Viking who travelled the seven seas until he settled down in the nicest location he had ever seen.

He used all his experience from around the world and filled his castle with all kinds of fun things to do.

Let us maximise the fun, was his motto!

Maximus is a breathtaking adventure fortress, which provides hours of fun!

Whatever the surrounding for this fortress will be, the beautiful wooden nature play structure is always a perfect fit. An excellent choice for destination parks and any other places where high capacity and variety of activities are needed.

This dream-like play structure consists of several exciting, high towers that are connected to each other by different types of bridges. Children are invited to play at all levels. Some sections are for younger ones, whilst others invite older children for memorable experiences.
